

Retrieval-Augmented Generation is a technique that combines information retrieval with text generation.

RAG improves answer accuracy by grounding responses in external documents.

Vector databases are commonly used in RAG systems to store embeddings.